

5

ABSTRACT

10 The invention concerns a microelectronic device used to produce light radiation over a broad range of luminances, and capable of being used in particular to form improved pixels for screens or displays of the OLED type for example.

15 Figure to be published: figure 2.